A Pleasant Outing.

With the coming of the warm spring days, the town man commences to look toward the green hills of the country and to wish for the opportunity to get out in the fresh air and commune with nature. The editor's better half (or better seven-eighths, according to some people's views), being away on a visit, he struck out with S. V. Larison last Sunday morning, to hear Bro. M. P. Lowry expound the word of God at Hardwicks Creek church. Arriving at the church after a pleasant walk of about three miles, we heard a splendid sermon by our old friend, and then proceeded to the home of S. G. Baker, where a dinner fit for a king was put on the table by Mr. Baker's good wife, and to say that we did justice to it would be putting it mildly. Friend Baker informed us that, being unexpected, we would have to put up with very ordinary fare, but if the dinner we got outside of was ordinary fare for a farmer, we are going to trade this printing office for ten acres of land right away, and go the country to live. Being unwilling to walk very far after such a dinner, Mr. Baker kindly accompanied us in a buggy to the old gas well, on Hardwicks Creek, where the ceremony of baptism was performed at 3:30, three converts having been made to the church at the meeting Saturday night. Leaving Mr. Baker at his home, we made the return trip to town on foot, happy and contented, in spite of the fact that a shower accompanied us for the last two miles of the trip. This was the editor's first experience of the hospitality of the people on Hardwicks Creek, but unless his wife returns very soon, it will be hard to keep him out of that neighborhood on future Sundays, and friend Larison says he just naturally has to go back again to see if all these little chickens grow up to nice frying size.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Whitt were shopping in Lexington Wednesday.

Mrs. Russell is Highly Praised.

The following article is taken from the columns of the Kentucky Sun, a weekly paper published at Louisville, and the lady referred to, Mrs. Sylvia Russell, is well known to almost everyone in Clay City and Powell county, and those who know her best will more thoroughly appreciate the tribute paid her. Mrs. Russell's work in the education of the boys and girls of Powell, and later in Lee county, has not brought her as much fame outside these counties as some of our other mountain educators have received, but she is acknowledged by all who have come under her tutelage and by parents as well, to be one of the best teachers ever having charge of a school, and her methods of applying knowledge to the boys and girls under her charge, are second to none. The following is part of a lengthy report of her work in the mountain schools. Exercises were held at the Presbyterian church here a few days ago by the graduating class from the St. Helens High School. This School is the big enterprise of the little mountain town of St. Helens, promoted by and presided over by Mrs. Sylvia W. Russell, formerly of Clay City and later of Stanton, Powell county. She is one of the foremost educators in Kentucky. She started a graded school at Stanton some twelve years ago in two little rooms. It created an interest and drew attention to her genius as a teacher and as a result Stanton to day has a college with a fullgrown and well equipped faculty and splendid brick buildings, which draws students from Powell and surrounding counties. Children come in on the morning trains from the eastern part of the county and return on the afternoon train.

The school is the pride of that section and well it may be. Mrs. Russell taught in the college for a time after it assumed large proportions, but later went further into the mountains to the small town of St. Helens, Lee county, whose citizens had observed her work at Stanton and offered her splendid inducements which

Rural Credits.

Speaking of Rural Credits United States Senator Gore of Arkansas says: "The rural credit systems of Europe have succeeded. They have stood the test of time and experience. They have protected the interests of the investor. For instance, in Germany the bonds of some of their rural credit institutions bring a higher price in the market than the bonds of the German Empire bearing the same rate of interest. It is doubtless true that these European systems could not be transplanted bodily to this country. What Europe has done for her farmers America can do and must do for hers. "The ordinary commercial bank can not be expected to lend money for fifty or seventy years. It is obligated to pay its deposits on demand. It must keep its affairs in a situation to meet such demands. Rural credit institutions will meet a demand for credit which commercial banks never have and never can supply. Hence there will be no collision or friction between the two systems.

"Farm mortgages in the United States aggregate more than two billion dollars today. The average rate of interest is comparatively high. The farmers' demands for capital on long terms at low rates of interest is continuous and persistent. He needs money to purchase or complete the purchase of his home and to improve his homestead when purchased. He needs a system of credits not primarily to enable him to get into debt but to enable him to get out of debt."

The Kentucky Rural Credit Association, of which J. B. McCreary is president, has been the financial backbone of this state money on long time at 5 per cent interest. C. M. Madison is in Stanton this week in the interest of this association.

Those desiring information should see him.

Woollery Withdraws.

J. W. Woollery, who has been in the race for the Democratic nomination for Representative, has decided to withdraw, owing to the fact that he has not sufficient time to thoroughly canvass the district. He desires to thank all those who tendered their support, and to assure them of his good will.

Mrs. R. A. Irvin spent a few days shopping in Lexington last week.

The Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church will meet next Wednesday at the church and a full attendance of all members is requested.

meant much more financially, as well as a large and undeveloped field where she hoped to duplicate the work she had done at Stanton. Her present school has put St. Helens on the map and its diplomas are recognized at the State University—the same as those from other graded preparatory schools of the county.

It is said Mrs. Russell has had flattering offers to go into other and larger fields in connection with educational work, but prefers the mountain country where she has many friends and makes a good salary and finds good foundation for building purposes in the brains of the boys and girls of that section and as she says: "Besides the financial part, this feature is essentially important and appealing and I am not ready to quit the mountains."

Arguments on the Whisky Question.

The following has been called one of the most remarkable addresses ever given and has had a wonderful influence in creating the anti-liquor sentiment that is at present sweeping over the State. It was given by J. N. Hurty, State Health Commissioner of Indiana. It was forwarded to us by our Stanton correspondent:

This paper shall be brief; extra brief. I am determined that merit shall be accredited. I shall not take up the physiological action of alcohol, for that would be a work of supererogation in this presence. I shall not consider the dietetics of alcohol, for it is not a food in any sense, and has no true dietetic standing. I shall not consider the stimulant action of alcohol, for it is not a stimulant, it is only a sedative. I shall not consider the therapeutics of alcohol, for it has none. I shall not consider the mechanical or industrial uses of alcohol, for they do not here concern us.

The most important business before the business men today is the business of the public health, and further, if the business men do not soon grasp this truth and act upon it, then are business men not the real business men but business children. This is said of business men because they are in the saddle, and they virtually run and govern things; and they are doing a poor job. This is attested by our over-high taxes, the failure of municipal government, the rottenness of legislatures, the non-control of venery, the omnipresence and awful destruction of syphilis, the prevalence of preventable diseases, the prevalence and non-reduction of crime, the prevalence and non-reduction of insanity, poverty and feeble mindedness, the increase of defectiveness and delinquency, and the increasing consumption of alcohol as a beverage with its endless chain of abominations. All of these evils and more are upon us, not because we cannot remove and prevent them, but because we will not. The business men who are our leaders and governors, are continually trying to improve and increase business, succeeding only partially, because they do not recognize that business, like all other fundamentally good things of human life, depend upon the moral and intellectual health of individuals. A community, a state, an empire depends absolutely upon its healthy men and women, for its morals, strength and character, the sick, the diseased, the drug habitues, the alcoholics, and the other defectives, have no part in the prosperity and happiness of a nation. They are a source of expense and weakness. They are a burden. They must be supported, and practically, they are useless, deleterious and unnecessary.

Assuming these statements to be true, then it follows—if a nation desires success, and is to be successful, its business men must look to it that government is righteous; and to be righteous, it must closely follow the laws, so far as they are known of national well being. After governmental organization, the first absolutely necessary consideration is the cause of public health; for without health mental and physical efficiency with honesty cannot exist. "The care of the public health is the first duty of the Statesman," said the eminently practical Disraeli.

The public health is paramount. Do little or nothing to advance it, and the nation falls. The wonderful and well demonstrated physical and mental strength and efficiency of the Germans, rests upon health. Of course that Nation has not removed all of the obstructions to health and efficiency, but it has removed many, perhaps most of the prominent ones. Among the huge drawbacks to health and efficiency, yes, to life, liberty and pursuits of happiness, is alcohol. Because of its wide use it has become the most awful of all the drugs or dope which have fast-

STANTON.

Rev. P. O. Dertluck received a message that his mother was in a dying condition, and he left immediately for Indianapolis, the home of his brother, Rev. Henry Dertthick to see her. We, one and all, who learned to love Mrs. Dertthick while she lived with her son Paul here, regret and sympathize deeply to hear that she was dead before Mr. Dertthick reached her bed side.

Born, May 3, to the wife of Rupert Derickson, a fine girl.

Rev. D. H. Matherly, pastor of the Christian Church, Clay City, was here Monday.

W. F. Adams, one of our hustling young merchants, has returned from a business trip to Clark County.

The Stanton Town boys defeated the Stanton College boys in a lively base ball game in the tune of 14-10. Saturday

Mrs. W. C. Martin of Clay City was a guest of her sister, Mrs. James Martin and family Sunday.

Rev. J. T. Adams has just returned from Concord, Madison Co. where he preached to large audiences Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Johnson and Mrs. Judge Derickson were guests of Mrs. Johnson's brother, Will Knox, of Levee, Sunday.

We are glad to note that Miss Labe Knox is feeling much improved since she returned from Lexington.

Mrs. Georgia Williams, of Lexington, and Mrs. Clemma Landers, of Texas, visited their father Hon. Jno. W. Williams, and Mrs. C. H. Mansfield, their sister, the early part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Davis and Miss Pauline, who have been visiting Mrs. Davis' parents, returned to their home at Lima O. Saturday morning.

Mrs. Margaret Vance is reported to be getting along nicely in the Good Samaritan Hospital where she underwent a rather serious operation for throat trouble last week.

Mrs. Anna Sewell of Jackson, Ky. has returned home from several days visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hardwick.

Robert Ewing is the first in the community, so far as we know, to get through planting a large crop of corn.

Rolen Eversole, representative for the Louisville Tin and Stove Co., is at home this week, because of the illness of Mabel with pneumonia fever, but is now reported much improved.

J. P. Revelof Indianapolis, is a guest of his uncle, Jas. Ewen, this week.

Colonel Madison of Pittsburg, the Rural Credit Man, is in town this week getting the farmers interested in the association.

Dr. Leming reports a fine girl at the home of John McKnight.

of ownership, management, circulation etc., required by the act of August 24, 1912, of the Clay City Times, published weekly at Clay City, Ky., for April 1, 1915:

Editor, managing editor and publisher, M. P. O'Mara. Owned solely by M. P. O'Mara. Known bondholders, mortgagees and other security holders holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock, J. E. Burgher.

M. P. O'MARA.
Sworn to before me this 1st day of May, 1915. A. T. Whitt, Notary Public.

My commission expires Jan. 23, 1915.

Judge Shackelford, of Madison, was here Saturday, mixing with the voters and putting in a word for himself in his race for the nomination for Circuit Judge. Judge Shackelford does not believe in letting the grass grow under his feet, and appears quite confident of the result in August.

One of the biggest sensations of recent years in the courts of this state was created last week when Mrs. Houston Underwood, widow of the man for whose murder T. Q. Wallace and Frank Chaney were convicted at Winchester last week, repudiated her testimony, given in their trial, and stated that her evidence was given under a threat. Later on, when the grand jury took the matter up and she was summoned before that body, she stated that the retraction was forced from her by threats, and that the evidence she gave in the trial of Wallace and Chaney was true. As a result the brother of Wallace and the mother of Chaney were indicted for obstructing justice.

The withdrawal of H. H. Cherry from the race for the Democratic nomination for Governor, has cleared the air a little in that race, and a large number of his supporters will turn over to McChesney. It is quite probable from present indications that one or two more will drop out, and in the end it may come to a race between Stanley and McChesney, which would surely decide the whisky question in the state. In the event of such a race there would be no question but that McChesney would carry this county, for the simple reason that local option, as we have it here, is anything but satisfactory to the general public, and National or Statewide prohibition would be welcomed by a large percentage of the voters.

We have called attention, at various times, to the prospect for a splendid market for horses during the next few years, and from present indications, the demand for horses will be increased to such an extent after the close of the European conflict, that this country, to which all Europe will have to look for their supply, will be unable to fill the demand. It is therefore, good business policy for any man having a good mare, to breed her, and moreover, to breed her to the best horse he can find. With the number of good horses that are now in this county, a farmer has no excuse for breeding to a scrub, but can take his choice from a number of registered horses, any one of which will produce him a good colt, that will be the kind to bring a good price when old enough for market. First select your horse to suit the mare, that is to say, mate them with the idea of producing a colt that will have the better points of both. Then see that the horse or Jack is registered, and that his pedigree contains the names of good stock horses. That will put you on the safe side.

Prominent Men Now use Tanlac

Mayors, County and Circuit Judges Obtain Famous Medicine

Lexington, May-5 "I have sold Tanlac, since the beginning of its introduction in Lexington, to the mayors of a number of cities, county judges, circuit judges, and to many of the most prominent business and professional men in Kentucky," says Wm. E. Stagg, the Lexington druggist.

"The demand for the preparation has been phenomenal. In all of my twenty years' experience in the drug business I have never seen anything that equals it."

"In addition to the Lexington demand, Tanlac has been shipped from my store to Kansas City, Mo.; Colorado Springs, Col.; Denver, Col.; Memphis, Tenn.; Meriden, Conn.; Bonilla, S. D.; Pittsburg, Pa.; Jacksonville Fla.; Louisville, Ky.; Tiffin, Ohio; Cincinnati, Ohio; Columbia, Tenn.; Palm Beach, Fla.; Phoenix Arizona; Los Angeles, Cal., and many points throughout the country that are too numerous to mention. You may rest assured that every city in Kentucky has, too, heard of Tanlac.

"I can only account for the great demand for this preparation by the fact that it is a good medicine. That is proven by the numerous statements from those who have tested the medicine in cases of catarrhal affections, of stomach, liver and kidney complaints and are now convinced of its excellent merits. The public has not been slow to appreciate the Tanlac merit.

"Practically $15,000 worth of Tanlac has been sold and distributed through my store within the past seventy days. Such a demand is most certainly unprecedented.

"I take pleasure in commending Mr. Cooper and his very excellent preparation."

Tanlac, the preparation referred to, is now sold in Clay City by Eaton & McGuire and in Stanton only by Hardwick & Co's.

John Deere No. 999 Planter

"OBLIQUE SELECTION" is the name given this perfect seed dropping device which repeated tests show is as far ahead of the old edge drop as the edge drop was ahead of the round hole plate. It takes its name "Oblique Selection" from the fact that the air the hopper bottom and the openings to the seed cells are oblique or sloping. With the old edge drop the kernels had to be tipped on edge before they could enter the cells at all. The weight of the corn in the hopper interfered with this action—consequently cut down the accuracy. By doing away with the necessity for tipping the kernels over into a narrow, vertical seed channel and having in its place the gradual sloping walls, the weight of the corn, or gravity, helps instead of hinders the movement of the corn entering the cells of the seed place. Each cell therefore fills more readily.

With the new John Deere Oblique Selection, the seed is handled in a more natural and simple manner. It has been the called "NATURAL" DROP because the kernels of corn as they lie on the bottom of the hopper naturally move toward and slide into the cells. In other words, with this drop the weight of the corn is turned to advantage.

Nothing will ever take the place of accuracy in a corn planter. The shrewdest corn growers have realized this for some time and the demand for corn planters that will demonstrate their accuracy in drop has steadily increased. Do not buy any corn planter without testing its drop for accuracy.

VARIABLE DROP—ENCLOSED GEARS

This planter has a variable drop, consisting of gears constantly in mesh, and with this device two three or four kernels can be planted as desired, by merely shifting the foot lever.

Practically all other so-called Variable Drop planters are only SEMI VARIABLE i.e., they vary the number of kernels of grain in hilling, but do not vary the distances in drilling.

This is a FULL VARIABLE DROP planter, both for HILLING and DRILLING, as it also varies the distance in drilling as well, giving a greater variety of distances than the ordinary planter and without the use of extra sprockets and plates.

All corn plates on the No. 999 Planter have 16 cells. Therefore, we get the same drilling distances with this plate as can be obtained on other planters with the 8, 12 and 16 cell plates without change of plates.

When you want a planter that is scientifically and mechanically correct, that will drill or check corn accurately, be sure you come in and investigate the merits of the

LOCAL NEWS

A large crowd from here attended county court at Stanton Monday.

The Board of Trustees held their regular monthly meeting Saturday night, transacting only the ordinary routine business, no matters of importance coming before them.

The school census of Clay City, which has just been completed by J. T. Duncan, shows that there are 212 children of school age in our town. Only 8 adult illiterates were found, their ages ranging from 23 to 50.

Bro. P. J. Turpin will preach at Powell's Valley Church, the 5th Saturday and Sunday of this month. Bro. Turpin was formerly pastor of this church, and a large crowd is sure to attend and hear him.

Messrs. Isaac and Leonard Mize, sons of J. W. Mize, of Vaughn's Mill, paid a pleasant call on The Times last week on their way back to Ohio, after attending the wedding of their sister, Miss Fannie Mize, to Mr. George B. Wiseman, of Akron, Ohio.

The rain Sunday and Monday nights did an immense amount of good to the crops throughout the county, and put the farmers in a better shape, as, owing to the prolonged dry spell, the ground in many places could not be worked to advantage.

Mr. C. M. Madison, representing the Kentucky Rural Credit Association, spent several days here last week. He is at Stanton this week. He reports finding the farmers very favorable to the propositions put forth by the Association and a number from this county have secured stock in it.

A few weeks ago we published some verses entitled "What would heaven be to me without my Papa there?" and have received a number of enquiries as to the author. Mrs. Mimmie Faulkner, of Shade, wrote the verses, and has given us permission to make her name public. These verses attracted a lot of attention, and were very creditable, indeed, for an amateur poet. Mrs. Faulkner is a staunch member of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at Nada, and has done much for the cause of prohibition in this county.

Some people may believe this story, but we don't. Frank Keenon came into the Times office a few days ago with a long face and the story of a batch of chickens. He claims that Mrs. Owen Staples, of the Darlingsville neighborhood, hatched fifteen chickens from four teen eggs, one egg having been double-yolked, and two living chickens being hatched from it. This story may be true, and if Mrs. Staples says so, we will believe it, but Frank will have to get some good alibi before we take it in.

$20 INCREASE PER ACRE ON LAND ADJOINING ROADS BUILT UNDER NEW STATE AID LAW

This State Aid Law for Building Good Roads Promises To Be the Greatest Blessing Ever Brought To Kentucky Land Owners,
If the Burden of the Taxes is Not Thrown Upon Them Through Unwise Legislation.

The new and greater Kentucky, as a result of wise legislation, as against the old Kentucky, with unwise legislation, high taxes, bad roads, poor schools and worse school houses. Which do you prefer?

An increase of at least $20 an acre on the value of all lands adjoining improved roads built under the new State Aid Law is estimated by expert calculators who have gone into the subject very thoroughly.

The building of these public highways will also increase all other lands in proportion in every county and district.

This most notable forward step will prove the greatest blessing that has ever come to the land owners of Kentucky.

It is the intent of this law that all taxable property shall bear its proportionate burden of taxation for this State Fund for road building.

It was not intended that the land owner, though possibly receiving the greatest benefit, should bear the greatest part of the tax burden. Such great sources of revenue as our railroad properties, distilleries, financial institutions and manufacturing enterprises will bear their just part, as well as all other taxable property. The throttling or crippling of any of these great resources by hostile legislation must lay a heavier burden upon the land owners and other tax payers.

More than 100 counties have already levied a tax upon themselves in order to take advantage of this State Aid Fund for the building of Good Roads in their respective sections. This year alone the fund amounts to $658,320. This sum will be increased by levies in these counties so that the sum expended will probably exceed two million dollars.

It is estimated that at least 6,000 miles of good roads will be completed under this new State Aid Law within the next 15 years, costing when completed approximately thirty millions of dollars. It is also estimated that the expenditure of the two million dollars this year will increase the value of property to the extent of at least twenty-five millions of dollars in the counties where these roads are built.

This is a splendid beginning. What a difference this will make to the land owners, the farmers and all others who make use of county roads, whether for business or pleasure. There are many fine farms in Kentucky 20 or more miles from the railroad that are not worth half as much as if they were near a railroad station, for the reason that it is too far to haul farm products to market over the old-fashioned dirt roads, which are practically impassable for nearly half of the year.

What a difference, though, when these same farms shall have been connected with the railroad or the market with a good State road over which it is easy to drive and haul as compared with the old roads. To haul a large load over a good road, even twenty miles, is easier and quicker than to haul it over five miles of the old time winter mud road. These good roads, therefore, will bring the distant farm nearer to the market and add greatly to the profits of the products of the farm.

Under the supervision of competent state and county road engineers, county seats and the most populous sections of the State will be connected by improved public highways, bringing the church, school and market nearer the door of every family. Then will come a new era of prosperity in Kentucky.
With the markets thus of ready access, the farmer can market his products of all kinds to better advantage in every way—do it in less time, with more ease, less cost and greater profit than ever heretofore.

While good roads are more necessary and of more economic importance than possibly any other civic improvement to which the people of the State can turn their attention, there are other important things to be done.
Such wholesome tax reforms must be the expenses of government. These expenses have to be met out of the taxes paid on the property of our citizens.

Any legislation that would tend to cripple or render less valuable any of the great tax-paying industries of the State, will necessarily transfer the burden to the farmer, merchant and home owner.

It is time for every tax payer to demand that his Representative in the Legislature consider these facts. It is time for them to call a halt to the destruction, or threatened destruction, by hostile legislation, of property interests in the State from which we derive our greatest revenues.

In other words, industries and enterprises that pay the largest taxes and make possible the great benefits to be derived from good roads, good schools, and improvements in agriculture, must not be destroyed or driven from the State.

Good roads bring the country folk and city folk into closer contact—means a broader gauged, hand-in-hand attitude toward public matters, toward public good. May our legislators and every citizen of the Commonwealth look forward to, plan and work together for a greater Kentucky; to conserve every source of revenue for meeting the State's obligations, keeping it out of debt; lowering the burden of taxation; placing it where it belongs and not throw the burden of the land owner nor any other one class. May this new dawn of a greater Kentucky forever put a stop to any movement that would tend to cripple or destroy any of our great industries.

Good Roads or no good roads, we can never move forward and take our place in the galaxy of great States around and about us in progressiveness, education, wealth and industry, until we have become constructive rather than destructive in our legislation.

ened upon mankind. There is no health in alcohol. On the contrary, it is an agent of physical and moral ill health.

Where squalor, immorality, and bestiality, poverty exists, there alcohol and other drugs have sway. Insanity and crime trail after alcohol, and in its wake come ill health and disease. A high authority says, twenty-five per cent of insanity is due to syphilis; ten per cent is due to accident; forty per cent is heredity, and twenty-five per cent is due to alcohol. Whether or not these figures are accurate does not here greatly matter, for certain it is, alcohol is potent in the causation of crime, in the causation of poverty and of feeble mindedness. Alcoholism brings sickness, and sickness induces alcoholism. Farmers are great buyers of patent medicines. Farmers who take these quack remedies generally have dyspepsia. The dyspepsia comes from bad food and bad cooking, and rotten teeth preventing proper mastication. When dyspepsia accepts the cordial invitation extended to it, and arrives with both feet, the victim rushes to patent medicine and finds fatuous relief in the alcohol they contain. Then diseases appear for on top of the dyspepsia climbs alcoholism, and on this rides many kinds of diseases. Alcohol is clearly opposed to the public health, for it hurls any animal organization into which it is taken. It is not a food, not firstly, not secondly, not thirdly. It is no degree and in no manner aids digestion. It in no degree furthers the good of the body. On the contrary, as said, it hurts. It always hurts.

Its use as a beverage, not only oppresses personal health, but also the public physical and moral health, and also the public economic health. Every saloon is a public dope shop, not second in evil to the opium joint. Alcohol is truly a dope. For every dollar of revenue derived from alcoholic beverages two dollars of public cost for crime, insanity, and delinquency, is endured.

Now, what is the duty and work of medical science in regard to alcohol? More than two hundred and sixty years ago the great philosopher Descartes said, "If ever the human race is raised to its highest practical level, intellectually, morally and physically, the science of medicine will perform the service." Descartes was not a physician, and scholars agree that he was the most original mind of this latter age, and that he more than any other thinker has moulded and directed modern scientific and speculative thought. Accepting this dictum, I ask again what is the duty and work of medical science to alcohol? From our promise it is accepted that alcohol should be absolutely condemned as a beverage, and used sparingly, even reluctantly as a medicine. It is plain that the doctor, as a representative of medical science, has a fearful duty to perform.

Let the doctor then be up and doing. Let every doctor lift where he stands. Let him not dare to shirk his duty. If alcohol is not killed by the science of medicine it will continue its destructive course. For there is no other Hercules to dispatch it.

After repeated appeals from the medical and surgical staff of a great manufacturing company the controlling powers posted this notice, "Workmen frequenting drinking places, coming to or going from work, will be replaced by non-drinking men as rapidly as possible." This notice in the American Car and Foundry Company plant at Berwick, Pa., has resulted in a marked decrease in accidents among five thousand men employed there. The actual decrease being 34 per cent. There has also been a marked decrease in sickness and disease among the men and their families, and the saving bank deposits have increased $80,000 in one year. After considering the teachings of medicine in regard to alcohol and doubting considering their own observation the high military authorities of all the great nations now at war have forbidden the drinking of alcoholic liquors by their soldiers, declaring this is done in the interest of health and efficiency.

It has been suggested by the editor of a great magazine that, possibly the now raging European war is in some degree a war against intemperance. After all (he argues) our development is directed by a force or forces not ultimately under our control and higher and away from our desires and efforts. How wonderful, how passing strange it would be if the perspective of time would disclose that a war has resulted in making man more obedient to the laws of his well being, of bringing him into closer harmony with his environment.

As a thorn in the flesh deprives one of peace and happiness and unless removed will bring death, so will the thorn called alcohol which now destroys so much flesh, souls, peace and happiness among mankind, bring more decency and final death unless it is removed.

Richard Harding Davis in a very recent newspaper article commenting upon the troops of the Allies, compares the physical condition of the Turks with that of the whites. He says that they are a magnificent specimen of physical manhood; their bodies seem to be re-inforced with the finest of steel. They do not get sick, their endurance is twice that of the European soldier. They have not poisoned their body cells with meat and alcohol.

"My life experiences have forced upon me the conviction that alcohol is a greater enemy to mankind than any other drug, and we suffer incalculably from its poison, not that we cannot get from under it, but because we will not. However, I would be a rank pessimist and unworthy, if I did not believe sufficiently in mankind to strongly hope that the time is not far distant when we will know the unreason of alcohol and then put it away. In conclusion permit me to quote a remarkable indictment against the alcoholic traffic uttered by ex-governor Frank Hanly of Indiana. He said:

"I bear no malice towards those engaged in the business, but I hate the

"It certainly has no equal for la grippe, bad colds, liver and stomach troubles. I firmly believe Black-Draught saved my little girl's life. I hate it for its commercialism. I hate it for its greed and avarice. I hate it for its sordid love of gain at any price. I hate it for its domination in politics. I hate it for its corrupting influence in civic affairs. I hate it for its incessant efforts to debauch the soul of the country; for the coward it makes of public men. I hate it for its utter disregard of law. I hate it for its ruthless trampling of the solemn conquests of State constitutions. I hate it for the load it straps to the laborer's back; for the pulsed hands it gives to toll; for its wounds to genius; for the tragedies of its might-have-beens. I hate it for the human wrecks it has caused. I hate it for the almshouses it peoples; for the prisons it fills; for the insanity it begets; for its countless graves in potter's fields. I hate it for the mental ruin it imposes upon its victims; for its spiritual blight; for its moral degradation. I hate it for the crimes it has committed. I hate it for the homes it has destroyed. I hate it for the hearts it has broken. I hate it for the malice it has planted in the hearts of men--for its poison--for its bitterness--for the denouement with which it starves the soul. I hate it for the grief it causes to womanhood--the scalding tears, the hopes deferred, the strangled aspirations, its burden of care. I hate it for its heartless cruelty to the aged, the infirm and the helpless, for the shadow it throws upon the lives of children for its monstrous injustice to blameless little ones. I hate it as virtue hates vice, as truth hates error, as righteousness hates sin, as justice hates wrong, as liberty hates tyranny, as freedom hates oppression."

be 105 ft. long with four concrete abutments. We think that the Fiscal Court of this county is doing all it can for good roads and bridges and in doing so we feel that they will have the support and the endorsement of every progressive and earnest citizen.
Whether it is the best to go around the hill or down the valley is a matter of opinion and may this new road or the remodeling of the old one be a monument to the Fiscal Court of 1915.

During the storm Monday night the house occupied by Rev. E. H.
Ritchie was struck by lightning, and some of the plaster was torn off the walls. Mrs. Ritchie was slightly burned, but her injuries are not serious.
